I'd like to comment on the 3 proposed options. Option 1 is suitable although you could find that one area of the shire would provide all the councillors with some areas not represented at all. Option 2 is my preferred as ward boundaries would most likely remain the same and 2 councillors for each ward would be sufficient. Ie if one wasn't available the ward would still be represented. And this model would be similar to what we currently have. And you know people don't like change! Option 3 is unsuitable as I feel boundaries recommended are not in the best interests of the ward they represent. And 1 councillors per ward means some wards would not be represented at meetings if councillors was unavailable.
